

Companies that put technology at the core of their strategy are most likely to be the leaders in their industry or the disrupters of the future. Even five years from now, 40 percent of the market leaders in

