Adobe Named One of Australia's Best Places to Work – Again

Adobe is delighted to be named as one of Australia's top 50 workplaces for the second year in a row by Great Place to Work®.

The annual study conducted by the research and education organisation saw Adobe rise to 14 in the nation, up from 37 in 2013.

Since 2007 Great Place to Work® has conducted a nationwide survey of company employees, allowing them to take the pulse of their workplace.

Adobe's Managing Director for Australia and New Zealand, Chris Skelton, said the ranking was an endorsement of the company's approach to creating an inspiring and fulfilling workplace.

"We are proud that Adobe has again been ranked as one of Australia's Best Places to Work in a year where we have continued to grow," Skelton said.

"Adobe is changing the world through digital experiences and attracting the most talented and creative people to our organisation is key to that.

"We work hard to create an environment where our employees are inspired and can contribute their best ideas. Our collaborative offices offer a fantastic environment where our team can thrive.

"A great place to work begins with its people and we are thrilled to maintain our place as one of the country's best. We look forward to our continuing investment and commitment in Australia."
